civ I service before allowing the government to take over these public util ties. Under our present brand of party government, we don't know that the country would be bettered, and when the people take a step in any direction, they want to be sure they are going forward. The extension of the civil service ought to be insisted on at any rate, but more espec'al'y if the government takes over vast interests employing thougands of men and women.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME

We suppose we are as familiar with the Soldiers' home at Raleigh as most newspaper men in the state, since we have visited the place a number of times, and know personally many of the veterans. The home was all right, barring the arrangements about the dining room and kitchen, for veterans who were active enough to look out for themselves, but since the inmates are becoming more feeb'e, no doubt the infirmary idea needs to be established there in

The worst features of the home have been improved; we infer that he kitchen and din'ng room have been screenedf rom flies. Captain W. S. Lineberry, who recently resigned, was a good old gentleman, a dashing soldier in his time. We knew some of his difficulties too, and he often remarked that the most complaints came from those veterans who had east at home. The state ought to make life easy for these old men, but the public should consider their case with an understanding of the temperaments and dispositions of a hundred people who have nothing to do except read the papers and conjure up complaints. One of the sweetest old characters at the home-a school teacher of refinement-used to tell us how thankfu he was for that place of refuge for him in his old age. He has since passed to his reward, we believe.

NOT FOOTBALL

A 14-year-old boy died in Waycross, Ga., the other day as the result of injuries sustained in a "football" game, we are told. As a matter of fact the lad was not engaged in football, but a sort of rough and tumble scrimmage with the other boys under no rules and with no sort of coaching. The death of this 'he' holvever, will furnish many a text by the people who do not realize that the game as played by the schools and colleges under good coaching, is far different from the scramble of boys who undergo no preliminary work, who know nothing of the contest, and who have none of the paraphernalia to aid them in the'r play. Of the deaths and serious injuries reported for the past few years-and these were less than occurred in baseball, we believe—the great major'ty of cases were similar to that reported in Waycross
